PLANS OF ACTORS AND MANAGERS.

Mrs. Kate Chase Sprague and her daughter Ethel came to New-York on Wednesday to prepare Miss Ethel for a career upon the stage. She will begin her studies on Monday with the Lyceum Theatre School

William Gillette, the dramatist, was made happy the other day by the receipt from Washington of a clatter of a horse's hoofs, which he had been using in "Held by the Enemy." The patent covers a period of seventeen years. Mr. Gillette experienced considerable difficulty in securing this patent, but the frequent imitations of the effect by other companies made him persistent and he finally succeeded. This action on the part of the Patent Office is of the greatest importance to dramatic authors, as it establishes a precedent under which they can protect their rights against "pirates." Mr. Gillette will prosecute any clation of the rights secured to him by the patent.

Rudolph Aronson and Richard Barker returned from Chicago on Thursday night, after successfully launching "The Yeomen of the Guard" at Hamlin's Opera House. They started for Boston yesterday to superintend the production of the same operation by the Stetson Opera Company.

Ample preparations have been made at the Star Theatre for the revival of "A Midsummer Night's Bream" on Monday evening. New scenery has been provided. The company, under the management of J. W. Albaugh, is said to give a good performance. In addition to the Mendelssohn music, selections are abnounced from the works of other composers. The following is the cast:

Next week at the Grand Opera House Frank Mayo will perform in "The Royal Guard," "Nordeck" and "pary Crockett." On Sunday night portraits of the tourist Emperor, the Chancellor with the from will and views of Berlin and the homes of the Kaisers will be shown by Professor Cromwell.

"The Crystal Slipper; or Prince Prettewitz and Little Cinderella." has been well received at the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia. Critics of that city praise the production and the performance as bright and wholesome. "Little Tich," the grotesque, has rejoined the commany.

city praise the production and the performance as bright and wholesome. "Little Tich," the grotesque, has rejoined the company.

Mr. Southern will play but two weeks more at the Lyceum Theatre. On November 10 he will give his last performance of "Lord Chumley," which will then le taken on tour. On Tuesday, November 13, the Lyceum stock company, with Mr. Kelcey, Mr. Miller, Mr. Le Moyne, Mr. Walcot, Miss Cayvan, Miss Dillon, Mrs. Walcot and Mrs. Whiften and others, will return to this theatre, reappearing in "Sweet Lavender," then to be first produced in New-York.

At the close of the performance to night in St. Louis, Edwin Booth, Lawrence Barrett and their company start for New-York by special train, arriving here on Monday. They will take the next two weeks to prepare for their opening at the Fifth Avenue Theatre on November 12. The opening play will be "Othello," followed the next night by "The Merchant of Venice." Both plays will be set with new secrety by Ernest Albert and new costumes and armor by Charles Hawthorne. The tragedians will have the assistance of their dramatic company and an auxiliary force of 100 men and women. Including selected singers. "Othello" and "The Merchant of Venice" will be presented on alternate nights during the first week of their engagement.

AND STILL THEY CANNOT REGISTER.

MES. JOHNSON MAKES AN INSPECTOR ADMIT, HOWEVER, THAT A WOMAN IS A PERSON.

Mrs. Anna P. Johnson and Mrs. Grace Devide en tered a place of registry in Lexington-ave. near Onehundred-and-fifteenth-st. yesterday afternoon, and consternation fell on the inspectors. Perhaps they thought that it was the Mrs. Johnson who had succeeded in registering down town. Mrs. Johnson, who was apparently born to be a lawyer, went to the point at once, saying:
"This lady wants to register."

w me the law," replied Mrs. Johnson, and she says that the inspector showed her an old "chestnut" which rambled on in a prosy way about " male citizens who are entitled to vote," etc.

But," retorted the adroit young woman, " the Conentution of the United States defines voters as 'persons.' Are we not persons?" And the inspector gallantly admitted that the ladies were persons.

Now we will take your own authority, John J. O'Brien," continued Mrs. Johnson, triumphantly. Mr. O'Brien, Chief of the Election Bureau, says in his manual, which gives practical hints to inspectors of registration: 'To entitle a person to vote, he must be twenty-one years old.' Now, we are persons, and Harvey's grammar-here it is-states that usage has sanctioned the employment of 'he,' 'his' and 'him' as a common pronoun."

These tactics, Mrs. Johnson says, staggered the inspector, but he refused to register Mrs. Devide or any other woman, but Mrs. Johnson insisted that he should give his reasons in writing. She shows this statement from the inspector: refuse to Register a Lady on the ground that I know of no Law requiring me to do so. Mrs. Johnson indorsed this statement as follows:

This man has signed himself an ignoramus on the law

This morning, Mrs. Johnson, Relva Lockwood and Mrs. Cynthia Leonard will go to John J. O'Brien and make a formal complaint against the obdurate in-spector, and will carry the case into court if they can.

CRAZY, BATTERED AND UNKNOWN IN BELLEVUE A man giving his name as E. Raymond was placed Insane Pavilion at Bellevue on Thursday night. He said that he had friends at No. 61 Broadway. No one there knew him there by that name, but one f the clerks said that a man giving his name as of the clerks said that a man giving his name as Renmann from Houston, Texas, had had some difficulty with a cabman in the office last Wednesday and had acted in a strange manner. Subsequently a letter was received from the Manhattan Hospital inquiring about Renmann and saying that he had been taken there in a budly bruised condition. At Bellevue last night Dr. Douglass said that the man was a German, age about thirty-five, and was deranged. His right arm was broken and several ribs were fractured. He could give no account of the manner in which he sustained these injuries. Dr. Douglass said that the injured man was from appearance a laborer.

A BIRTHDAY PRESENTATION TO MR. HARRIGAN. A scene not down on the bills pleased the audience well as the actors at Harrigan's Park Theatre las night. Just when Harrigan, as "Waddy Googan," was leaving the stage in the second scene of the and act, he was confronted by Frank E. Alken. Harrigan looked annoyed at first, then astonished, Harrigan loosed annoyed at hist, then assonshed, and when Mr. Alken had explained that it was Mr. Harrigan's forty-hist birthday, Manager Hanley and the company wished him many happy returns of the day, and supplemented the good wishes with a beautiful silver water service. Harrigan was confused. Ho could not say anything for some time; but he finally thanked Mr. Alken and the company for their kind remembrance and said he tried to have harmony the learnost among the company. key-note among the company.

THE MONUMENT TO JOHN M'CULLOUGH. Boston, Oct. 26 (Special).-The beautiful monument ected by American actors to the memory of John McCullough was sent to Philadelphia to-day from Poston. It is a noble work of art, executed from Quincy granite by Miller & Lace, of Boston. The general de-sign is like the Scott monument at Edinburgh. The cap is supported by four massive granite pillars, form-ing an arch, within which is to be placed a life-size figure of the actor.

WONDERFUL LAKE TAHOR.

The waters of lake Tahoe are marvellously purche purest and clearest in the world, I believe. One the purest and clearest in the world, I believe. One imagines that the waters of the river of life cannot be more pure. Repeatedly during our long pull I noted that the water lifted by and dripping from my oars had an apparently blue tings when we were pulling in the ocean blue of very deep water. This blue borrowed the bues of the deep water no less than of the unclouded blue sky above, leading one to believe that it was through a combination of blue water and sky that he was moving. If California had no other scenic attraction but this great it land sea of heavenly clearness of water-deep and blue as the ocean, too—it would not be poor in scenery. The cloud effects on it are marvellous in their ever-changing shapes and various color effects. The effects at Tahoe are in their greatest splendor at evening. From the summit of Tallac I have seen rose-flame, yellow, blue-purple and black-purple cloud effects that no painter dare reproduce on canvas without charge of exaggeration. Especially have I seen idde islands this shoulder was within greating distance of her head, and his mustache was in dangerous proximity to her forchead, knowing well that no one would suspect From The San Francisco Bulletin.

SUICIDE OF MRS. T. J. LYNCH

THROWING HERSELF FROM A WINDOW.

TYPHOID FEVER MAKES HER DELIRIOUS, AND SHE ESCAPES DURING THE ABSENCE OF THE NURSE-NO FEAR OF THE DISEASE AT THE HOTEL BRISTOL.

Mrs. Thomas J. Lynch, while in a state of delirium due to disease, threw herself from the window of her room in the Hotel Bristol, at Fifth-ave. and Fortysecond-st., at a few minutes before 7 o'clock yester day morning, and received injuries from which she died before medical attendance could be procured.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynch returned from Europe last Friday on the steamer Britannic, of the White Star They had been abroad for nearly a year. Mrs. Line. who was the daughter of John Tobin, an old friend of Commodore Vanderbilt, was married about five years ago. She was born in Brooklyn, and lived in Thirty-fourth-st. near Fifth-ave., for many years. At the time of her marriage, Mr. Lynch, who inherited a large fortune from his father, bought a house at Larchmont, and they moved from this city there and their home immediately became the centre of social attraction. The large demands made upon Mrs. Lynch's vitality in keeping up the pleasures and attending to the duties of social life under minded her constitution, which had never been of the strongest, and last winter a trip abroad was advised by the family physician. The Larchment house was sold, and Mr. and Mrst Lynch went to Europe, with their child, who was nearly a year old, intending to spend several years in travelling and visiting all the well-known resorts in other lands. Mrs. Lynch's health improved time after she went away, and then came a relapse and she was greatly debilitated. This altered plans that had been made as to length of the stay abroad, and Mrs. Lynch becoming impressed with the idea that sho would never be well again, expressed an anxious wish to return to this country to die among her friends and relatives.

COMING HOME TO DIE. She was seriously ill for several days before leaving England and suffered from severe pains in her head and nervous prostration just prior to taking the steamer home, and so much so that it was thought that the journey would have to be postponed. On the trip over, the weather was exceedingly bad. Mrs. Lynch received a severe fall by the lurching of the vesssel, and she had thereafter to remain the most of the time in her stateroom. She became ill and attributed her ailment to the fall. Immediately upon the arrival of the steamer, Mrs. Lynch was taken to the Hotel Bristol and assigned to a room on the third floor in the rear, looking out upon a little court-yard. Dr. William T. Lusk, of No. 47 East Thirty-fourth-st, was called to attend Mrs. Lynch and found a severe case of typhoid fever. It had been coming on for a long time, and the symptoms showed the disease to be of a dangerous character. Her pulse and temperature were unusually high and her body was racked by pain and fever. Two professional French nurses were procured and their time was so divided that one of them was in attendance upon the invalid all the time.

THE PATIENT DELIRIOUS AT TIMES. Mrs. Lynch became worse as the disease ran its course and frequently became delirious. She was not violent and could be easily controlled. Thursday night was passed comfortably and the nurse reported that she had slept quite well and the fever seemed to have abated. Shortly after 6 a. m. yesterday the nurse called Mr. Lynch, and obtained his consent to eave the patient for a time, while she went to attend early mass in a Catholic church not far away. Lynch took charge of his wife while the nurse was away. Mrs. Lynch seemed to be unusually bright and Mr. Lynch was greatly relieved to find such apparent improvement. But the brightness was not of re improvement. But the brightness was not of re-turning health, it was delirium. Mrs. Lynch said to her husband: "I would like to have a cup of coffee, Thomas, will you kindly get it for me?" Mr. Lynch was only too willing to get the coffee, and immediately left the room to call a servant. As soon as he got out Mrs. Lynch arose, wrapped a blanket around her shoulders and threw herself head first from the window. She struck on her head and shoulders on a glass grating, set in an iron frame-work. The force of the fall broke a large hole in it and she went through to the cellar. Mr. Lynch found his wife missing when he geturned. work. The force of the fall broke a large hole in it and she went through to the cellar. Mr. Lynch found his wife missing when he seturned. Thinking that she had gone into an adjoining room, he called her name, and then searched through the hall. He looked out of the window, but saw nothing that led him to suspect anything wrong, and it was only when he went down stafrs and met two of the hotel attendants carrying the mangled form of his wife that he knew what had happehed.

DYING IN A FEW MINUTES. The shock nearly unbalanced his mind, and he was in so distracted a state that he could not tell how it happened. Dr. Lusk was hastily summoned, but

As to free trade, there are many people here who see that if it is not adopted by other lands soon we, too, will have to pitch it overboard. We want markets for our products. If you come in and take our own markets from us and don't let us into yours we will be compelled, in self-defence, to keep a hold on that which is our own. OBITUARY.

EX-GOVERNOR WILLIAM T. HAMILTON. Baltimore, Oct. 26 (Special).-William T. Ham tand, and a conservative Democrat who always bit erly opposed the Gorman "Ring" methods in politics, died to-day at his home in Hagerstown. He had been ailing for some time, but the immediate cause of his death was blood poisoning. Governor Hamilton, as he was familiarly known all over the State, was born in Hagerstown on September 2, 1820, and was educated at Jefferson College, Pennsylvanta. He was admitted to the Washington County bar in 1843, and three years later he was elected to the State Assembly on the Democratic ticket. In 1848 he was one of the Cass electors, and in the following year he became the Democratic nominee for Congress and was elected by several hundred majority. He was re-elected to the XXXIII and XXXIIII Congresses, serving from 1849 to 1855. In 1855 he was defeated the Know-Nothing candidate, Henry W. Hoffman. Mr. Hamfiton was urged to accept the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1861, but he refused to allow his name to go before the convention. During the war he retired from politics. After the adoption of the Constitution of 1867 he was a candidate for the nomination for Governor against Oden Bowle. who defeated him by a majority of one. At the close of the War of the Rebellion he once more became prominent in Western Maryland politics, and in 1868 he was elected United States Senator from this State to succeed William P. Whyte, his term beginning on March 4, 1869. He was succeeded in the Senate by Mr. Whyte, who was elected while Governor. In 1875 Mr. Hamilton was a candidate for Governor, but was defeated in the Baltimore Convention by John Carroll, after an exciting all-night contest.

Mr. Hamilton was unanimously nominated for Governor in 1870, and was elected by a majority of over 22,000. Shortly after his election as Governor, the managers of his party in the House and Senate of Maryland fell out with him, and for more than two years he kept up a viscous context with the firsten years he kept up a vigorous contest with the "ring" elements of his party. He found his most conspicuous and formidable antagonists in his colleagues on the Board of Public Works. He vetoed a number of the bills passed by the Legislature, and sent in a number of messages strongly urging retrenchment in appropriations, reduction in taxes, and a more efficient enforcement of the laws. He was the first Demo-William J. Hooper. He was the first man to suggest and the first Governor to recommend the legalizing of primary elections and laws to punish frauds against During his Administration the stupendous frauds upon the registration were investigated by him. In a number of open letters he attacked the administrations of the State Treasurer, Controller and President of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. He aroused his followers by a great meeting held at Maryland Institute in 1881. The Republicans defeated a number of his most conspicuous opponents who were candidates for the Legislature and State offices. That year Queen Anner County, the home of Thomas J. Keating, which usually gave 500 Democratic majority, gave a majority to Thomas Gersuch, the Republican candidate against Controller Keating. After the expiration of his term as Governor Mr. Hamilton was not a candidate for any political office. He inherited a fortune from his uncle, and this, together with the inheritance of his wife and what he accumulated by his own business sagacity, made him the wealthlest individual in Washington County. His wife was Miss Clara Jenness, of Portsmouth, N. II. She survives him with two sons and four daughters. frauds upon the registration were investigated by

COLONEL GERARD L. McKENZIE.

Colonel Gerard Lathrop McKenzle, who died at his graduate of Union College, read law with Miller, Peet and Nichols, was admitted to the bar and practised law in this city until the war for the Union broke out. In 1861 he went to the front as a private in the 9th Regiment, New-York State Militia. He afterward became major of the 96th New-York Volunteers, and when the first colonel of that regiment, Charles O'Gray, was killed, succeded him in the command of the regiment, with which he was en- of confidence and sympathy. gaged in thirteen battles.

He served for three and one-half years, and returning to this city practised law as a member of the firm of Young & McKenzie. In 1864 he married Miss Emily Gray, daughter of General Thomas 8. Gray, at Warrensburg, N. Y. He soon after retired from active business. For the last eight years he in so distracted a state that he could not tell how it happened. Dr. Lusk was hastily summoned, but it was too late. He got to the hotel at 7:15 o'clock and Mrs. Lynch was dead.

The skull was badly fractured, a dozen or more bones were broken in her body, the flesh was horribly cut and bruised everywhere, and she was covered with blood from her wounds. Her face was a shapeless mass, crushed beyond recognition.

Deputy Coroner Jenkins was informed, and visited the hotel. He took the statements of Mr. Lynch, Mr. smith and the persons who found the hody, and then gave a permit for the removal of the body. Dr. Jenkins was of the opinion that Mrs. Lynch's life would not have been endangered if the professional nurse had not been absent. In order to guard against any possible spread of the disease at the hotel, Mrs. Lynch had been kept isolated as far as it was possible, and no one in the hotel, it is said, had any fear of taking it.

received a good common school education and entered Yale College in 1829, graduating with high rank in his class in 1833. He immediately began the study of law, and after being admitted to the bar opened an office in Broad-st., Newark, which he had ever since occupied. From the first he took high rank at the bar, confining himself entirely to the consulting and reference lines of his profession.

In 1867 he was appointed register in bankruptcy for the Vth Corress district, under the National Bankrupt law. From this office he received the title of Judge, by which he was generally known. In 1854 he was elected Alderman of the city of Newark and during his term he was instrumental in abolishing the volunteer fire department and establishing the paid department. He removed to East Orange in 1885. He was a prominent member and vestryman of Trinity Church, Newark, and president of the Orange Club, preceding John L. Blake, the present incumbent. Mr. Morris married on November 28, 1837, Elizabeth Field Pratt, daughter of Enoch Pratt, of Brewster, Mass. She died on November 26, 1869. On February 2, 1879, he married Annie Elizabeth Revere, of Bridgewater, Mass., the great granddaughter of Paul Revere. She survives him, with three children by the first marriage.

SELECTIONS FROM THE MAIL.

THE LOGIC OF THE SACKVILLE LETTER.

DOES IT IMPLY A HIDDEN UNDERSTANDING WITH THE ADMINISTRATION ?

Editor of The Tribune. Sir: A great deat of space has been given to the dis-cussion as to whether, under diplomatic rules, the British Minister should or should not have written the etter to the Los Angeles correspondent, and at times the effect of the letter itself seems almost to be lost sight of. It certainly cannot be doubted that Lord Sack-ville is not exactly a fool, and it is but fair to suppose that as a trained diplomat he had some inkling of the dipiomatic rules and customs with a full knowledge of which everybody has been bubbling over since the publication of this correspondence. It appears that the Minister's correspondent was unknown to him; hence friendship, or even acquaintance, cannot be pleaded. It would be unwarranted, and indeed, highly baurd, to believe for a moment that England's representative could have any personal interest in American politics, or would be personally benefited by the elecion of either Harrison or Cleveland.

Now, hear in mind that the British Minister, by reason of his official position, has a full knowledge of all negotiations, public and secret, which have been had between his country and the United States since the beginning of the present Administration, a knowledge shared only by the chief officers now in power Washington, and not by 65,000,000 of people. Hence it follows, logically and unanswerably:

1. That the British Minister's advice to his Los Angeles correspondent was based upon accurate knowl-

the country he represents.

3. That his motive must have been a powerful to cause him to violate a well-known taw of interto cause him to violate a well-known law of international diplomacy, of which it would be worse than insane to believe him ignorant. It is likewise clear that in the matters which are at present the subjects of international negotiations between Great Britain and this country a benefit to the former can only accrue by some disadvantage to the latter.

How can the blindest Democratic partisan, who may still retain an atom of patriotism refuse to beed and act upon a letter destined to become famous in the annuls of our political history?

New York, Oct. 20, 1888. GEORGE F. DUYSTERS.

A PIOUS PILGRIMAGE.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: There is at Stratford-upon-Avon, close by the beginning of the Warwick Road, as you turn away from Clopton's Bridge, a pretty and picturesque little church, called St. Gregory's—a pleasing feature in that charming landscape, and the source of much comfort cratic Governor to give the Republicans representa- to the small Catholic community of Shakespeare's birthtion on the Board of Election Supervisors, appointing place, a body about 200 strong. The paster of that church, the Rev. J. Stuart, O. S. There is a school connected with St. Gregory' Church, and a good one-situated in Henley-st., almost opposite to the Shakespeare birthplace-in which, at present, eighty-eight pupils are taught and trained. This school would accommodate 150. Upon this in-stitution there is a debt of $5,000, and this the venerable priest has long and zealously labored to p The Catholics of Stratford are poor and are few private means of Father Stuart, all the little savings of his long and frugal life, have been given to this cause—the good cause of education. father's name was Bennett, which was changed and Frenchified to Benet by this son of military and patrician proclivities. Brigadier-General McFeely, present Chief of Commissary to the War Department, and practically acting about one-half of the time as Secretary of War, is the man who, was investigated by Congress a few years since, when one of the Commissioners of National Soldiers' Home at Washington, and was found in this investigation to have been average of the vegetables, etc., produced by the soldiers at the home. The repeated and prolonged absences of Mr. Endicott from his department at Washington leave this man, whose official function is the supplying of pork and beans to the Army, virtual Secretary of War, and in practical command of the Army, over Major-General Schoffeld, who is the Army's head, and McFeely's superior officer. Mr. Endicott has been absent from Washington in Massachusetts between two and three hundred days, or the larger part of a year, during his term of office. Mr. Vilas, who two years ago made a request of Democratic members of Congress to make a search in their districts for Republican officials taking part in political meetings, with the view of discharging them for "offensive partisanship," is stimping Wisconsin and New-York, and Postmaster-General Dickinson is on the stump in Michigan.

RECEPTION TO THE COUNTY CANDIDATES about one-half of the time as Secretary of War, is the

RECEPTION TO THE COUNTY CANDIDATES. THE FEDERAL CLUB LISTENS TO FINE SPEECHES

A reception given last night by the Federal Club in the club-rooms at Fifty-ninth-st, and Madison-ave, to the Republican County candidates, was well attended and passed off successfully with good speeches and good singing. William E. Keyes, one of the vice-presidents of the club, presided. H. C. Perley, John W. Jacobus, E. Morgan Hildreth and Ernest H. Crosby were guests of the club, and among the mem hers present were William E. Keyes, L. E. Chittenden, Percy McIlrath, Charles E. Bidwell, James T. Nicoll, Harrison D. Hunt, James H. Phipps, G. R. Westerfield and W. D. Murphy.

Mr. Jacobus made a pleasant speech, in which he said that everything now pointed to Republican success in the local as well as in the National election. Mr. Crosby briefly discussed Civil Service reform, ballot reform and riigh License. He pointed out the utter impracticability of Prohibition, and about Governor Hill remarked that such a low, tricky, shrewd, canning man was utterly untrustworthy, that he would throw over his friends if it suited him as readily as he would his enemies, and that he might turn around on the very liquor-dealers who are now sup-porting him. If he were again elected. Mr. Crosby also strongly urged the necessity of a solid Republican vote for Mr. Erhardt, which would surely result in his surcess. his success.

Mr. Hildreth said he meant to work hard, and he hoped that the voters of his district would work as hard as he did.

T. C. Campbell made a rousing address and Mr. Chittenden and others also spoke.

MANY FINE ORCHIDS SOLD.

A fine lot of orchids imported by Frederick man were sold at auction by Young & Elliott at their store, No. 56 Dey-st., yesterday. The collection conained cattleya labiata warnerit, which has a bloss six inches across with sepals and petals of a beautiful rose, the lip large, of a rich crimson and finely fringed; a winter flowering cattleya percivaliana; cattleya lo-bata superba, which blooms in May and June, and when in bloom is a good plant for exhibitions; oncidium kapillo, lacha perinif and numerout other varieties. The bidding was spirited. Jay Gould's representative, Mr. Mangold, bought for Mr. Gould a cattleya labiata warnerii for #21, a cattleya percivaliana for $50, a cattleya lobata superba for $26, an oncidium papillo for $23 and others amounting in all to $321.75. F. Goodrich, through his representa-F. Goodrich, through his representa tive, Terrance Welch, invested $650. He procured a cattleya sanderlana, the only one of the kind in the lot, for $45; a laelia perinii for $42 and a cattleya perivaliana for $50. Erastus Corning's purchases amounted to $400. There were S37 plants sold, and the proceeds amounted to $4,000.

Health Officer Smith sent a communication to the Boards of Health of New-York and Brooklyn yesterday regarding the captain of the steamship Cearense who was reported to have died of yellow fever. The report says that there has been no appearance of yellow fever in the ports at which the vessel touched on its homeward voyage and that none of the crew has suffered from the disease, although more the usual time for the incubation of the yellow fever germs has elapsed since the last possible exposure. These circumstances led the health officers to believe that the captain did not die from yellow fever.

The police succeeded yesterday in finding the cab in which the captain was taken to St. John's Hospital, where he died on Wednesday. It was funigated and the driver was disinfected. The Ceatense and her crew are now at Quarantine.

HALL MCALLISTER'S MIND NOT GONE.

HE IS SUFFERING FROM NERVOUS PROSTRATION,

BUT IS WELL ENOUGH TO START FOR SAN FRANCISCO TO-MORROW.

Hall McAllister, who has been the leader of the Sai Prancisco bar for many years, is in this city on his way home from Europe. Last spring his physician, finding that he was suffering from nervous prostration. advised him to give up business entirely for six months or a year and go abroad. He spent several months at Brussels and Aix-la-Chapelle, taking the chalybeate waters, by which he was greatly benefited. He reached this city ten days ago, and has since then been at the house of his son-in-law, Francis H. New

A dispatch from San Francisco says that a sensational story has been published there to the effect that Mr. McAllister had lost his mind and that he was dying. In relation to this his brother, Ward Mc-Allister, said to a Tribune reporter last evening: "His mind is as clear as is ever was and his judgment is sound. I have been his constant companion since he reached this city. While his intellect is unimpaired his frame is feeble. He is in his sixty-third year. He starts for San Francisco with his son, Hall Me-Allister, jr., next Sunday. He hopes within six months, with proper rest and repose, to be able to return to the practice of his profession, but he is still in a delicare condition. He has disease, but suffers simply from nervous prostration. I cannot tell how this may result, but there is no danger of his mind giving way. He walked with me to-day from Gramercy Park to the Grand Central Station, and secured his drawing-room section and bought his tickets for San Francisco. He has ridden down to Wall-st, every day since he arrived here. He walks out daily."

ANXIETY DROVE HIM TO SUICIDE.

THE NAVAL OFFICERS' OPINION OF THE DEATH OF PAYMASTER HOXSEY.

Officers at the Navy Yard yesterday could not give any other reason for Passed Assistant-Paymaster T. D. Hoxsey's committing suicide than that it was tue to the mental strain and anxiety from which he has suffered in connection with the course of the inquiry in the Navy contract frauds. Paymaster Hoxsey had been on special duty in connection with the Bureau of Provisions and Clothing, in which the frauds were discovered from January, 1887, and only recently finished giving his testimony, which occupied several weeks. Immediately after this was finished he obtained a month's sick leave.

The paymaster had charge of that branch of the department from which the large amount of blue cloth was taken by Clerk Van Orden, some of which was returned a few days ago. It is said that there was no evidence connecting the paymaster with the irregularity. He was a man of sensitive nature, and had a heart trouble which made him nervous and sublect to fits of despondency and melanchely at intervals since his wife's death two years ago.

T. Frank Hoxsey, the brother of the dead man. married as his first wife, a step-daughter, and rot a daughter, of lease W. England.

MRS. J. G. BLAINE, JR., LIKELY TO DIE. Mrs. James G. Blaine, jr., was taken suddenly ill at the house of a friend in Madison Square on Thursday night. A physician was called in, but before he arrived her condition was so critical that it was thought unsafe to remove her to the New-York Hotel, where she is living with her father and mother, Colonel and Mrs. Nevins. She rallied somewhat during the evening, and the physician finally consented to allow her to be removed to her rooms in the hotel. was done, and Dr. Fuller, who was first called in to attend her, sought the advice of Dr. Smith, who lives at the hotel. They stayed with Mrs. Blaine all night and a professional nurse was sent for.

Last night at midnight the three physicians in at tendance on Mrs. Blaine were doubtful if she would recover. She was lying in a darkened room under the care of the nurse and the doctors, and her con-dition was so critical that not even her father and mother were allowed in the room. She was in a semi-delirious state, and did not recognize those who were with her. The physicians said that the chances were against her getting well.

A DINNER TO THE GAELIC ATHLETES. A brilliant informal gathering of leading athletes was held at the Manhattan Athletic club-house last night, when the members of the Gaelic Association own to a dinner given them by the members of the club preparatory to their departure for Ireland, which takes place on Tuesday next. In the chair was G. W. Carr, and near him were John Cullinane, Dr. J. C. Daly, C. Connef. L. E. Myers, A. Peverelly, J. W. Butt, John Black, S. J. Cornell, G. M. Sacks, C. C. Hughes, E. H. Hoyt, Vanderbilt Cross, King, M. H. Elkin and G. A. Avery.

In responding to Mr. Carr's toast of the "Gaelic Association." John Cullinane made some rather warm reference to the inhospitable reception his men had received from the Athletic Union, and contrasted it with the cordial reception accorded the Americans by all Irish athletes on their visits to the Emerald Isle. To-night the Manhattan athletes give a private reception in honor of their Hibernian guests.
